MANAGER COMMENTARY

Hot on the heels of the full year reporting season, companies are releasing their updates for the first quarter of 2018. Whilst we don't put too much weight on the outcome of just thirteen weeks of trading, we can make a few observations. Rising commodity prices have been impacting margins, and some companies, such as lift and escalator manufacturer Kone, are working through price increases to customers in response. It's not just capital goods companies seeing input cost increases; PepsiCo saw similar in the food and beverage sector. Consumer goods have generally fallen out of favour with the market, which has meant that the valuation opportunity in the sector has improved and we have increased its weighting in the fund at the margin. Elsewhere, the technology sector has seen positive trends in cloud computing continue with Microsoft, Oracle, Intel and IBM's cloud divisions seeing significant growth. The healthcare sector has had some mixed results, where some companies like Roche and Johnson & Johnson are enjoying an upswing from new products whilst others such as GlaxoSmithKline work through the bottom of their patent cycle. The longer-term prospects in healthcare are attractive where novel and useful products are created, across pharmaceuticals, devices, services and consumer health. In the latter case P&G is expanding through the acquisition of Merck's consumer healthcare business.

What are the Risks?

As a concentrated equity portfolio of typically less than 40 investments, the fund can involve higher risk and higher volatility. The value of an investment and the income from it can fall as well as rise as a result of market and currency movement; you may not get back the amount originally invested. You should therefore regard your investment as medium-to-long term. Details on the risk factors are included in the fund's prospectus, available on our website.

The TB Evenlode Investment Funds are subject to normal stock market fluctuations and other risks inherent in such investments.
