MANAGER COMMENTARY

March saw the positive run for global equities continue, with the fund up by 0.8% and the comparator benchmark MSCI World index up by +3.2% in dollars. The fund is sitting at near all-time high levels, backed by solid cash flow and dividend growth from the portfolio as we noted last month. However, recent performance against the market and the sector of global income strategies has been relatively muted. The Evenlode investment process looks for high quality businesses that can steadily grow cash flows to drive returns to shareholders through time, and that are relatively insulated from the economic cycle. While this strategy of selecting resilient companies has demonstrated relative downside protection in market downturns compared to the index, we acknowledge that the strategy is likely to lag in stronger markets and indeed this is what we have seen in recent times.

Comparing to the benchmark MSCI World index much of the recent relative underperformance has come from Information Technology firms, which have been positive contributors for the portfolio year to date - but even more positive for the market with a notable boom in the semiconductor industry. A comparison to the MSCI World High Dividend Yield index over the last three years allows us to draw comparisons across sectors that are more typically found in yield-seeking portfolios. The strong showing for the Financials and Energy sectors in the MSCI index more than accounts the performance lag against peers as these sectors feature companies that do not generally meet our investment criteria and are generally not held in the portfolio. For sectors that are found in the fund, positive relative performance has come from the Communications Services, Industrials and Information Technology sectors, but Consumer and Health Care companies have detracted.

The overall valuation environment remains attractive and the recent weakness in our preferred sectors provides opportunities for investment. Last month we added a small position to the portfolio in French spirits maker Pernod Ricard following share price declines. This used proceeds from some other consumer names including rival Diageo, which has also fallen, but by less.

Integration into the investment process

Active risk management is vital in safeguarding long-term investment returns. This includes valuation, liquidity, and fundamental business risk. Fundamental risk pertains to the unique risks faced by each company. We have established a defined risk framework centred around ten risk factors that impact a company's ability to navigate uncertainty. These factors include environmental, social, and governance (ESG) risks, which are independently overseen by our Stewardship team. We classify ESG risk as material for a significant portion of the companies we invest in. Given the nature of our investment process and time horizon, environmental risk will continue to gain significance as we move towards a net-zero economy.

Our ongoing commitment

Signatory of:

Evenlode Investment Management became a signatory to the United Nations Principles for Responsible Investment (UNPRI) in 2018. By becoming signatories, we commit to implementing these principles and incorporating environmental, social and governance factors into our investment process to help enhance returns and better manage risk for our clients.
