MANAGER COMMENTARY

June was a quiet month in global equity markets, with market volatility<sup>1</sup> continuing to decline steadily as participants acclimatise to the macroeconomic conditions. We remain vigilant to potential macroeconomic developments and aim to shield the portfolio from a range of outcomes. In terms of performance, Evenlode Global Income trailed both the comparator benchmark, the MSCI World Index, and the IA Equity Income sector for the month.

Overall, the fund has had a quiet month, with no entries in or exits out of the fund during the period. We are now halfway through the year, so it presents a good opportunity to reflect on the year-to-date. Despite being unconstrained by sector, the fund's sector weightings have changed little so far. Most notably, we have reduced the overall exposure to consumer staples slightly. This is partly due to slowly reducing the position sizes of companies like Procter & Gamble in response to valuations that have steadily improved since March. We also exited our position in US consumer company Clorox earlier in the year, with better valuation opportunities available elsewhere. The fund has also gained exposure to the financial sector through its initiation of a position in US software provider Jack Henry.

In performance terms, the fund has faced a headwind from the continued lack of exposure to certain large technology companies, such as those that operate in the semiconductor space. Although some of these are high-quality businesses, most either do not fit our investment process criteria, are not appealing based on our valuation estimates, or do not pay a dividend. However, this headwind has been largely offset by the portfolio's stronger performers. These include the likes of sportswear manufacturer adidas, who have seen confidence in their turnaround story, luxury goods conglomerate LVMH, who continue to post strong results, and tech behemoth Microsoft. As these share prices increase, we will continue to exercise valuation discipline through nudging the portfolio and seeking the best opportunities to invest our clients' capital for the long term.

Integration into the investment process

June sees the close of the major AGM season at Evenlode when the stewardship team focuses on analysing and voting on AGM resolutions. To do this effectively we follow a detailed analysis process; as we do not use proxy advisors, we analyse each resolution based on the company reports before submitting our votes. As part of our active ownership, we then engage with the company if there are points of concern, if we require further information, or we vote against any resolutions. This year we have decided to combine these AGM promoted engagements with our net zero engagements aiming to increase efficiency for both the companies we engage with and within our own processes. Further to our AGM analysis we also run each company through our ESG risk score matrix where they are given a score from A – E. This allows us to manage companies’ risks and maximum position sizes. This risk score advocates for strong corporate governance, social and environmental policies, allowing Evenlode to manage the investments in a responsible and sustainable manner.

Evenlode Investment Management became a signatory to the United Nations Principles for Responsible Investment (UNPRI) in 2018. You should therefore regard your investment as long term. Details on the risk factors are included in the fund's prospectus, available on our website.

INVESTOR PROFILE

The Fund may appeal to investors who:

- ✔ Would like the prospect of sustainable real income growth combined with some capital growth over the long term
