MANAGER COMMENTARY

April saw a weaker tone in equity markets, perhaps not surprisingly following a very strong first quarter of the year. Despite falling in the month, the fund fared slightly better than the MSCI World Index helped in part by a resilient performance from the portfolio's Consumer Goods companies, particularly Unilever, Procter & Gamble and Shimano. The latter bicycle components maker upgraded its profit outlook for the year from a low base as the global bicycle market stabilises following the pandemic. Spirits producers Diageo and Pernod Ricard were down on the month, though in another story of post-pandemic normalisation as the level of stocking at distributors reduces, especially in the US. Industrial and business services companies in aggregate detracted from performance as signs of some softness in demand were seen in results. For some companies like media, data and analytics firms RELX and Wolters Kluwer, share prices coming down a little has come off the back of a very strong run over the last 18 months during which we have reduced the position sizes somewhat to reflect the fact that whilst fine in absolute terms, the valuations are not as attractive as they once were.

We added two new positions to the portfolio during the month in financial exchanges CME Group and Deutsche Börse, at 'starter' position sizes of just over a percent of the portfolio each. We have written about the companies in a recent investment view if you would like a detailed look at the businesses (<https://evenlodeinvestment.com/news/following-the-value>). In brief, they enjoy network effects and economies of scale as they deliver value to their customers in consolidating their trading and clearing of financial derivatives across various different asset classes. They are themselves trading at an attractive valuation and so the new positions provide a space in which to invest the proceeds from recent strong performers whilst diversifying the revenue streams that underly the portfolio's cash generation and dividend.
