MANAGER COMMENTARY

March was positive overall for global equity markets, continuing the upward trend so far this year, despite the recent increase in volatility. The fund has benefitted from no exposure to banks, which have underperformed in the context of concerns over the health of their balance sheets, while the lower exposure to Information Technology compared to the benchmark has been a relative drag.

Market movements can provide valuation opportunities, and this has led us to be more active this month. We initiated two new positions, Shimano and Jack Henry & Associates, and exited one position, Broadridge. Broadly, the rationale for each decision was driven by relative valuation differences.

Shimano is a Japanese company that produces performance cycling components. Shimano has a strong brand and is the leader in a consolidated market, selling critical components through a network of bicycle manufacturers and independent retailers. These parts are small, complex and are the source of most of the performance of the complete bicycle. Consumers have demonstrated a high willingness to pay for this performance, most notably during the COVID pandemic, which caused unusual volatility for the industry as it was hit with both elevated demand and supply issues. This short-term uncertainty has contributed to the improvement of Shimano's relative long-term valuation, which we are happy to take advantage of.

Jack Henry is a provider of software to small and medium size US banks that facilitates their day-to-day operations and ancillary services. The company's offering is premium in function and delivery because of consistent reinvestment. Switching costs are high and revenue is highly recurring. Jack Henry benefits from ongoing pressure for banks to increase technology investment, which should only increase further given recent developments.

To fund these new positions, we exited the position in Broadridge, a company that also provides software and solutions to the financial services industry. While we continue to believe that the fundamentals of the business meet our requirements, the valuation appeal has worsened relative to other opportunities in the investable universe and we decided that capital could better be reinvested elsewhere.

Integration into the investment process

As an employee-owned business the aim is to build a multi-generational team within which, in due course, the business can be handed from one set of employee-owners to another whilst continuing to consistently apply our process to the portfolios we manage. The concept of delivering in the long run for all stakeholders means that the team is structured to take collective ownership for the decisions made on the portfolios we manage, whilst containing lines of individual responsibility to ensure that accountability is not dissolved. Over the course of last year, we added two new members, Rebekah Nash, Governance Analyst and Zikri Jaafar, Stewardship Analyst to the stewardship team. Both have been excellent additions to the team as we further develop our stewardship strategy.
