MANAGER COMMENTARY

May proved to be volatile for equity markets, with a flat-ish return for the month masking large day-to-day swings. The fund witnessed somewhat less volatility overall, albeit finishing down moderately for the month. The causes of market volatility have variously been mooted as a response to inflation, the threat of recession, rising interest rates, continued uncertainty due to the war in Ukraine, supply chain difficulties as China locked down in response to a Covid outbreak, and generally high asset values following a prolonged period of strong returns. All of these are likely to have contributed in some way to the market environment, which has been notable for a lack of volatility in recent years.

The impact of input cost inflation and supply difficulties have been seen within the portfolio, with networking giant Cisco reporting a shortage of power units meaning their ability to satisfy customer demand has been curtailed. The company think the impact will continue to be felt over coming months, and the firm's stock was down as a result. The challenge is not coming from demand with the company enjoying a record order book, and this is a pattern we are seeing in other companies within the portfolio.

In terms of portfolio activity in the month, we disposed of the fund's holding in cross-border money transfer firm Western Union following a review of its competitive position. The company has a dominant position in cash transfers to emerging economies where an extensive branch network provides a significant barrier to competitors. However, the business is rapidly digitising and whilst Western Union is participating in this transition, it faces the potential for stiffer competition within the niche currency 'corridors' in which it has traditionally been strong. The company may navigate the transition well, but our assessment is that the competition has become stronger.

Integration into the investment process

Every year, Evenlode assesses the financed emissions embedded in its investments, to better understand the impact our investee companies have on the climate, and the risk they face from regulation and consumer pressure on climate transition. Our annual Portfolio Emissions Report 2022 states that the emissions associated with investing £10k in one of our funds is between 0.6 and 2.4 tonnes of CO₂-equivalents or between 25 and 56 kilograms for scope 1 and 2 alone. This is many times lower than the emissions associated with an equivalent £10k investment in a fund tracking the MSCI World Index or the FTSE All Share Index, Evenlode funds' formal comparator benchmarks (this is for scope 1 and 2; Scope 3 estimates are still not widely reported for funds and indices). For more information, please visit our website for the full emissions analysis plus our latest annual Responsible Investment Report 2021.

The value of your investment and the income derived from it can go down as well as up, and you may not get back the money you invested, you should therefore regard your investment as long term.
